Magellan Health Services Board of Directors Names Rene Lerer, M.D., Chief Executive Officer

Company Announces Other Executive Appointments

AVON, Conn., Feb 25, 2008 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- The Board of Directors of Magellan Health Services (Nasdaq:MGLN), a leading diversified specialty health care management organization, has named Rene Lerer, M.D., president and chief executive officer, effective immediately. Lerer, 52 years old, most recently served as president and chief operating officer (COO) of the Company. He succeeds Steven J. Shulman, who will continue to serve as non-executive chairman of the board.

Lerer joined Magellan in 2002. As president and COO, he was responsible for the Company's three lines of business - behavioral health, diagnostic imaging and specialty pharmaceuticals - as well as its customer service, care management and claims operations, and a number of corporate functions. Earlier in his career he was a co-founder and president of Internet HealthCare Group, a health care technology venture fund, and served as COO for Prudential Health Care nationally. He received his undergraduate degree from Oberlin College and his doctor of medicine degree from the State University of New York at Buffalo.

"I believe Rene Lerer is one of the strongest executives in the managed care field today and his leadership has been critical to the Company's success over the last five years," Shulman said. "He was integral to the operational turn-around effort that Magellan undertook in 2003 and 2004 and, since that time, has successfully led the Company's operational expansion beyond its behavioral business into other areas of health care. As I relinquish the CEO role and transition to my retirement, it is my privilege to be continuing my association with a great organization and a remarkable leader."

On behalf of Magellan's board, Lead Director Robert M. Le Blanc said, "The Company's directors and Steve have always considered Rene to be Steve's natural successor and felt it was important to recognize his talents and strengths by promoting him to the CEO role at this time. Over the last several years, Steve's vision has helped guide the Company and he has played a pivotal role in shepherding Magellan through its turnaround and the design and development of its strategic growth initiatives and business diversification. We deeply appreciate his contributions and look forward to continuing to draw on his expertise in his role with the board."

Commenting on his appointment, Lerer said, "I am honored to have the opportunity to lead Magellan as its president and chief executive officer and gratified by the confidence that Steve and the board have shown in me. Steve's mentorship over the course of our working relationship has been invaluable to me personally and professionally. As I take the reins as CEO, I thank both Steve and the board and look forward to their continued support."

"Magellan has a great future ahead of it and I am fortunate to be taking on my new role backed by a team of particularly strong leaders who have created a robust foundation for the Company's growth. Key among them is Mark Demilio, our chief financial officer, whom I will ask to take on a greater leadership role as the Company enters a new era. His strategic insights, financial acumen and thoughtful counsel have played a crucial part in our ability to achieve our objectives and I look forward to partnering with him as we chart the Company's course for the future."

While the Company will incur a charge in the first quarter associated with Shulman's transition agreement, it does not anticipate revising its 2008 earnings guidance. The Company also confirmed its previously announced 2007 earnings guidance.

Additional Executive Appointments

The Company also announced that Eric S. Reimer, 38, now will lead the Company's strategic development and mergers and acquisitions effort, and that Tina M. Blasi, 50, has joined the Company as CEO of National Imaging Associates (NIA), succeeding Reimer.

Reimer led the acquisitions of both NIA and the Company's specialty pharmaceutical business, ICORE Healthcare. He was named CEO of NIA in 2006 and led the transformation of the organization into a full-service radiology benefits management firm, with provider network and claims payment capabilities and the ability to manage services on a risk basis. Blasi co-founded and served as chief operating officer of Lumenos, a leading consumer-directed health plan located in Alexandria, Va. While with Lumenos, prior to and after its acquisition by WellPoint in 2005, she was responsible for all financial, technological, operational, and client-centered aspects of the company, including new product development, account management and management of network and partner relationships.

"Eric played a critical role in diversifying the company beyond our behavioral health footprint," Lerer said. "With Eric having jump-started NIA's growth efforts, and with another seasoned health care executive available to succeed him and ensure a seamless transition, now is a natural time for him once again to lead our M&A activity. We are delighted to welcome Tina to Magellan's executive management team and look forward to drawing on her entrepreneurial background and expertise in growing world-class emerging-industry businesses. She is a strong leader who will build on NIA's foundation for growth and track record of success while ensuring a seamless transition for those served by NIA."
